Basic information

Revista Brasileira de Estudos de População (Brazilian Journal of Population Studies) (Rebep) is Brazil's only nationwide periodical focused exclusively on demographic topics. Its central objective is to encourage and disseminate Brazilian and international production in the field of Demography and Population and Sustainable Development, facilitating the interface between this field and other related areas.

The journal is a quarterly publication of the Brazilian Association for Demographic Studies (ABEP) and is interested in receiving and evaluating articles and other written material for publication within the editorial scope. The abbreviation of its title, Rev. bras. estud. popul., should be used in all bibliographies, footnotes, bibliographic references and legends.
